ABSTRACT

Over 776 journal articles pertaining to rural development are cited. Entries are arranged by topic: agriculture, area development, community, economic development, environmental improvement, facilities and services, human resource development, leadership, organization, rural development, rural-urban relationsnips, and social action. Some articles are discussions of previously published articles and both may be classified as relevant rural development subtopics. In these cases, an entry for the article being discussed is listed directly beneath the discussion-oriented article. The articles are from the 1950 through 1975 volumes of the: ADMINISTRATIVE SCIENCE QUARTERLY, AMERICAN JOURNAL OF AGRICULTURAL ECONOMICS, AMERICAN JOURNAL OF SOCIOLOGY, AMERICAN SOCIOLOGICAL REVIEW, AMERICAN SOCIOLOGIST, BRITISH JOURNAL OF SOCIOLOGY, FARM POLICY FORUM, HUMAN RELATIONS, INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF COMPARATIVE SOCIOLOGY, JOURNAL OF EXTENSION, LAND ECONOMICS, RURAL SOCIOLOGY, PACIFIC SOCIOLOGICAL REVIEW, PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION REVIEW, SOCIAL FORCES, SOCIAL PROBLEMS, SOCIAL SCIENCE QUARTERLY, SOCIOLOGY AND SOCIAL RESEARCH, and SOUTHERN JOURNAL OF AGRICULTURAL ECONOMICS. FOREWORD

In 1974, faculty in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology at Clemson University reviewed the state of the art for rural development bibliographies. Bibliographies on this topic emphasized material from books, monographs, bulletins, and professional papers. However, bibliographies from journal articles concerned with the topic of rural development were nearly nonexistent. Thus, a decision was made to prepare a bibliography from journal articles on eleven topics associated with rural development and a residual topic termed simply rural development. The twelve topics and subtopics under these headings are listed in the Table of Contents.

Material was considered from the following journals: Administrative Science Quarterly, American Journal of Agricultural Economics (Journal of Farm Economics until 1968), American Journal of Sociology, American Sociological Review, American Sociologist, British Journal of Sociology, Farm Policy Forum, Human Relations, International Journal of Comparative Sociology, Journal of Extension (Journal of Cooperative Extension until 1970), Land Economics, Rural Sociology, Pacific Sociological Review, Public Administration Review, Social Forces, Social Problems, Social Science Quarterly (Southwestern Social Science Quarterly until 1969), Sociology and Social Research, and Southern Journal of Agricultural Economics. The inclusive volumes for review were 1950-1975; some issues of the 1975 volumes were not available when the cut-off date was established.

The bibliographic entries are arranged by topic and subtopics. It was determined that many articles could be categorized under more than one subtopic. Thus, secondary subtopics are listed directly beneath the entry for multiple-categorized articles.

Some articles are discussions of previously published articles and both may be classified as relevant rural development subtopics. In these cases, an entry for the article being discussed is listed directly beneath the discussion-oriented article.

The work leading to the formulation of this bibliography was supported by research funds allocated to South Carolina, from Title V, Rural Development Act of 1972.
